HELD FOR TRIAL

TEMPE, Oct. 8.-W. C. Chaffett, who pleaded guilty Saturday to a charge of forgery, has been bound over to the Superior court for trial by Justice Aus-

Chaffett came to Tempe Friday and after purchasing a quantity of goods at the Busy Corner, and in payment therefor offered a check signed with the name of T. S. Maloney, a contractor working on the canal some miles west of here. Suspecting that the check might be a forgery, A. S. Herzberg, the store manager told Chaffett that be didn't have the money on hand to he didn't have the money on hand to cash the check at that time and to come back later. Meanwhile Maloney was communicated with and it was ascertained that the check was a forged one, and Chaffett, who returned a few boars later to set the money found. Hundreds of people crowded around the windows of the Hanny Clothing company last night, and admired the beautiful silver service to be presented to the battleship Arizona, by the people of this state.

The design and workmanship is beautiful in the extreme. Every piece is wrought with some symbol of Arizona. The larger pieces carry the name of "Arizona," and upon one bowl, an inscription states that the service was presented to the battleship Arizona by the people of this state.

The service will be on exhibition for several days in Arizona, during which time, the committee in charge of the gift will make an endeavor to collect money to pay for it. There is still considerable deficit in the money to be raised, and it is hoped that enough cash will be raised here to wipe out the debt.

The boys making up the high school student body are going to adopt a uni-form. It is not their aim to put the clothing merchant out of business, but n the interests of economy and school spirit, it was decided at a mass meet-ng held Saturday to all dress alike. The subject has been under consideration for some time. In fact it was ad-vanced last year, but no definite action was taken. This year several live wires got behind the project, and pushed it through to success, or rather to that point where it was decided to adopt the uniform garment.

The argument advanced by those in favor of the measure, was that it would not only be cheaper, but it would serve to wipe out the distinction between those boys who are plentifully blessed with worldly goods, and those who cannot afford more than one suit a year.

It was an easy matter to get the boys to adopt the idea of the uniform, but it was a hard matter to get any agreement on what the uniform was to consist of. All sorts of ideas were presented. One youngster presented a drawing carrying his idea of an appro-priate uniform. It showed a high school boy equipped in regulation overalls, jumper and high cowboy boots, big sombrero and red handkerchief around th eneck. The six shooter was omited. Another one, having read "Tom Brown at Rugby", was for the Eton collar, high silk hat, short waistcoat and long trousers. Still another was for the French smock and flat cap.

Pidge Pinney, always on the lookout for the picturesque, suggested that the army uniform be adopted, with leather putters, all same as army officers. He also suggested that a different colored stripe be run down the trousers leg to
